Where Endocrinology meets Nephrology

The year 2020 has been the year of a fruitful collaboration with the International Society of Nephrology. Together, the ISE and the ISN have joined forces to bring you new educational opportunities in the field of diabetes, chronic kidney disease, and COVID-19. Have you missed them or want to revisit them? Access these CME/CPD accredited activities today:

A Collision of Pandemics: Diabetes Mellitus and COVID-19
Current Management of Diabetes in Patients with Kidney Disease

International Menopause Society: A new Educational collaboration

Throughout 2020, the ISE and the IMS have worked together in the development of a multilingual webinar series on Osteoporosis Management and Primary Ovarian Insufficiency. We invite you to access the recordings of this sessions:

Online Metabesity Program

The term Metabesity expresses the links among diverse major diseases and conditions to shared metabolic roots. Diabetes, obesity, and cardiovascular diseases, joined by neurodegenerative disorders, cancer, and even the aging process itself, share metabolic and inflammatory provenances.

Access the first 3 courses of this interactive program developed by key international experts in the field:

- Definition and Diagnosis – Developed in collaboration with Dr Hasan Aydın \(Turkey\)
- Etiology and Pathogenesis – Developed in collaboration with Dr Ankie Coetzee \(South Africa\)
- Anthropometry and body composition assessment – Developed in collaboration with Dr Nitin Kapoor \(India\)
